- b. Delay of more than 60 minutes of the journey at the passenger's departure station
- c. Cancellation of a route, or delay of more than 60 minutes at the departure of an itinerary, or delay in the arrival of the original (first) itinerary, which in any case is part of the passenger's originally planned route (i.e., route that the passenger needs to be transferred from one itinerary to another). At passenger transfer hubs, the concept of connected itineraries (through ticket) generally does not apply.

has one of the following capabilities provided by HELLENIC TRAIN:

- (i.) To waive the beginning or continuation of his journey and to seek compensation for the journey he did not make in part or in whole,
- (ii.) To be transported to its starting station – on the first suitable route without paying a fare, or by any other means of transport – and to claim compensation for the journey not made, or
- (iii.) To depart or continue his journey, if possible, by another route or by another means of transport, via the same or another route, at the earliest opportunity or at a later date at the passenger's convenience.

In the case of strikes, compensation is given as in the cancellation of a route.

6.1 Cancellation of itinerary

6.1.1 Compensation for cancellation of itineraries

In case of cancellation of itinerary, passenger who waives the start or continuation of his/her journey is entitled compensation equal to the price of the ticket(s) for all or part of the journey that he/she did not travel.

This applies in the case of a single journey involving a cancelled journey but also in the case where a linked return ticket(s) has been issued. In other words, passenger has the right to claim compensation for the return journey as well before the scheduled departure of the service from the first (initial) station.

More specifically:

a) Ticket purchased from a ticket office

Passenger addresses a ticket office up to one month after the date of the incident, presenting his/her ticket.

For compensation for the waiver of a return journey, linked to an outbound route which includes a journey with a cancelled itinerary, passenger addresses a ticket office before the scheduled time of departure from the original station of the itinerary which is not cancelled.

The refund of the ticket price is made by issuing a nominal voucher, valid for one year or in cash.

b) Ticket purchased online (web & mobile)

Passenger addresses a ticket office or is compensated ex officio by HELLENIC TRAIN and the refund of the ticket price is made according to the method of payment. It is not possible the compensation to be paid in cash at the ticket office.

For compensation for the waiver of a return journey (inbound), which is linked to an outbound route which includes a journey with a cancelled itinerary, passenger may contact the Call Center up to 60 minutes before the scheduled time of departure from the initial station of the itinerary that is not cancelled.

The refund on the bank card (for the entitled fee) is not implemented directly due to banking system mediation.

Alternatively, if the passenger wishes to issue a nominal voucher for his/her compensation, he/she must contact the Call Centre or a ticket office (knowledge of the ticket's security code is necessary).

6.1.2 Departure or continuation of the journey by another itinerary

If passenger wishes immediately to depart or continue his journey, if there is such a possibility, with another itinerary through the same or another route, a new ticket is issued with the same destination without charge to the passenger.

This applies when it comes to a single journey that includes a trip with a cancelled itinerary but also in case the cancelled itinerary is the return trip (inbound) and the passenger wishes to travel immediately.

Especially:

a) Ticket purchased from a ticket office

Passenger addresses the ticket office, presenting his ticket.

- In the case of a single journey, a new ticket of equal value is issued for the same route as the original ticket, by issuing a nominal voucher.
- In the case of a return trip, a zero-value ticket is issued for the same route as the original ticket.

b) Ticket purchased online (website or mobile)

b1) Passenger addresses the ticket office and declares the ticket number and the security code of his/her ticket and compensation is made by issuing a voucher for the issuance of a new ticket, whether it is a one-way or return trip. In the issuance of a new ticket, discounts are lost due to the way the original ticket is issued. Passenger is required to pay the possible resulting difference and can request the return of this difference by claiming to the Commercial Passenger Transportation Department by submitting the two tickets (the original one that is cancelled and the new one).

b2) Passenger addresses the ticket office or Call Center claiming ticket cancellation. The refund is paid to the bank card.

When issuing the new ticket (either at the ticket office, web, or mobile), passenger pays for the entire ticket (since the money was returned to the card), but at that time any discounts are lost due to the way the original ticket was issued. The passenger can request the refund of this difference, by requesting the Passenger Transport Structure presenting the two tickets (original cancelled and new). The refund to the card (for the entitled fee) is not implemented directly due to banking system mediation.

6.2 Delay of itinerary

In the event of a delay either at the train departure from the initial station or on arrival at the passenger's destination station, compensation shall be paid at the passenger's request, depending on the delay time.

Compensation is only given for passenger tickets (not for additional fees or other transport titles for the carriage of animals, luggage, bicycles, etc.)

The following are excluded and not compensated:

- The special price tickets of the holders of the European Youth Card.
- Tickets issued after the scheduled departure of the train, due to its delay at the passenger's starting station.

- Interoperable tickets issued through the OASA system.

The refund of the ticket price is made by issuing a nominal voucher, valid for one year or in cash.

6.2.1 Compensation for delay in arrival

In case of itinerary delay on the arrival of the passenger's destination, compensation is paid in proportion to the ticket price, by issuing a nominal voucher valid for one year or in cash, as follows:

- For a delay of 60 to 119 minutes, the compensation is at the 25% of the nominal value of the submitted ticket.
- For a delay from 120 to 179 minutes, the compensation is at the 50% of the nominal value of the submitted ticket.

Especially: For the ETR itineraries Athens-Thessaloniki:

For a delay more than 60 minutes, the compensation is at the 100% of the nominal value of the submitted ticket.

The passenger's request for compensation due to delay in arrival can be made up to three (3) months after the time the incident took place. The compensation is paid within one (1) month from the submission of the compensation application. The threshold does not exceed 4 euros.

More specifically:

a) Ticket purchased from a ticket office

The compensation is given at the ticket office with the submission of the ticket.

b) Ticket purchased online (website or mobile)

The compensation is given either at the ticket office or by choosing the issuance of a nominal voucher through the company's official website.

6.2.2. Compensation for delay in departure

When there is a delay in the itinerary at the starting point of the passenger's journey of more than 60 minutes, the right to demand a refund of the ticket price is given to the passenger who does not wish to travel, provided that the request is made before leaving the station and an open ticket office is there.

The compensation is given either by depositing the ticket in case it is purchased from a ticket office, or by declaring the e-ticket number and security code in case it is purchased through web or mobile. The ticket price is refunded in cash.

7. Urgent traffic substitution by bus

In cases where there is an urgent need of running an itinerary by bus instead of by train, the passenger may waive his right to travel and request compensation for the route he did not travel.
